Mr. Stone doubted if anybody knew whether the league project would succeed, but said the representatives of the associated powers had addrassed themselves to the formation of an organization intended, if possible, to prevent a recurrence of war, which he said had reached a point, through the advance of science, where a future conflict would well nigh mean human annihilation. By the modern processes of inter-communication, however, the nations were inevitably brought closer together, he said, extending men's vistosions and giving "a little promise" that the congerss of Vienna the same transparently is a record, the congers of Vienna the following the congers of Vienna the congers of Vi

It was a mistake, Mr. Stone said, to imagine that there had been an un-pleasant or angry situation between the peace envoys of the associated powers, who had brought to their task sincere desire to solve a great prob lem. New York, April 22.—Development of inter-communication promises a chance that the league of nations may accomplish its object of insuring world peace, Melville E. Stone, general manager of The Associated Press, recently returned from the peace conference told the members of the news association at their annual meeting and luncheon here today.

LXCECUEG THEIR QUOTES.

Washintgon, April 22.—First reports on Victory Liberty loan subscriptions compiled tonight by the treasury showed $116,077,900 as the incomplete figures for five of the twelve federal reserve districts, covering sales only up to noon today. This probably represented subscriptions received yesterday, the first day of the loan campaign, and included only the subscriptions supported by initial payments as reported by individual banks to federal reserve banks.

The New York district reported $62.—Secure of Baranovichi and Novegrodek, south of Vilna, as well as $900,000; Boston, $1,623,000; St. Louis, Vilna itself, advices from Warsaw say, vilna itself, advices from Vilna south
